The Democrats are sure of nothing this year but a Solid South.

All the Republican majorities this year will reach high water mark.

Maine will sit down on fusionism and Democracy next Monday, and will make a good job of it.

The Democrats have no particular desire to hear from Maine. They don't want that kind of news.

The more the Democrats talk the more they boast the Republican. This is why some of the leaders prefer a still-hunt.

When the Garfield clubs finish their work in the campaign there won't be anything left of the Democratic party in Wisconsin.

The Democrats began to get nervous when Alabama gave their party 95,000 majority. They knew they had no business with that amount.

If the Democrats continue to gain as they did in Vermont, there is a dubious prospect of their carrying a single Northern State in November.

Mr. Tilden is a bachelor, and is supposed to have no immediate descendants. No one will doubt, however, that he is the legitimate father of the fraud issue.

There has nothing occurred in the campaign so far to revive the hopes of the Democratic party. Even the 95,000 Democratic majority in Alabama does not do it.

It is about time that Chairman Parkinson an editor of the Madison Democrat should get up another private and confidential circular showing how the Democrats are going to sweep Wisconsin.

Garfield will get a thousand new votes in Wisconsin from men engaged in educational work, because of his great learning and the fact that he takes such a deep interest in the work of educating young men. He will draw a good many votes from the Democratic party on this account.

The grand march of the Republican column this year will be a memorable event in the history of this country. It will crush more Democratic principles than were ever defeated in the Presidential campaign before. The tread of the column will be mighty, and the result will be the triumph of intelligence and loyalty over ignorance and secession.

A prominent Republican and one of the leaders in the prohibition movement, said at Madison on Friday that he was for his country first, and prohibition afterwards. Those who are thinking of nominating a prohibition candidate for the State Senate in the field in this county, should consider the wisdom in the remark of Hon. J. H. Foster.

Unless Chairman Parkinson, of the Democratic Committee, is more active, the Republican majority in this State will not be much above 30,000.

Don't discourage Chairman Parkinson. Let him work. The more he tries to do for the Democrats the bigger will be the Republican majority. As for instance in the gubernatorial election of 1879, and when he tried to boost Judge Cothren on the Supreme bench.

Last Monday Fred Douglass delivered an address before a large audience at Pendleton, Indiana, and it is related that on the platform were seated several Indians who had seen Douglass mobbed and left for dead on that very spot thirty-seven years ago. The woman who dressed his wounds after the mob had left him was among them. As Mr. Douglass referred eloquently to those events of far-off days, his audience pressed forward, unwilling to lose a word, and there was scarcely a dry eye in the crowd.

The Madison Democrat which acknowledged last year that the Democratic prospects were so encouraging as to embarrass its own party, confesses that it did not look for such a Republican majority in Vermont. Now, however, it figures out that Maine will give 13,000 Republican majority next Monday. The editor of that sheet is a skilled mathematician, and if he will continue to figure on the same basis, he will give Indians to the Republicans by 8,000 majority, New York by 30,000, and so on through the list. Keep on brother Parkinson, you are on the right track.

A majority of the school teachers at Port Huron, Michigan, get salaries of 83 cents a day, and a newspaper of that city says: "If the necessities of this city really demand such disgraceful salaries, we advise the School Board to turn the High School into an establishment for the teaching of young ladies the dressmaking business, as there is not a dressmaker in Michigan who understands her business but can make from $1 to $1.50 per day and board the whole year round." In Janesville female teachers get on an average of $1.75 a day, and the poorest paid teachers receive $1.40 a day, counting 20 days to the month.

The Bangor, Maine, Daily Whig and Courier, of September 6th, contains the following: "The result of the Ingersoll meeting at Bucksport, on Thursday evening, was the making of at least twenty-five Republican voters. Men who before didn't know where they stood, now have definite ideas of the true position which they should assume. The speech of Mr. Williams, in the evening, was able, logical and eloquent. The hall was packed.

The excellent Glee Club of the town, of forty voices, added greatly to the interest of the occasion by singing several fine campaign songs. Put down Hancock county one thousand majority for Davis and Milliken."

The Democratic programme is being carried out in all its details. It was announced that Mr. English was to begin proceedings for libel against Republican papers which published certain charges against him. This course is now being followed by the feeble Democratic lights. Judge McNeill has sued the Terre Haute (Ind.) Express for $2,000 damages, because the latter asserted that the Judge said that some of the statements of Judge Porter, Republican candidate for Governor, "were damned lies." General Bragg has caused the arrest of Mr. Kitchin, of the Fond du Lac Commonwealth, because the latter accused the former of selling a cadetship for $300. Vorily when leading Democrats are compelled to have recourse to the law to protect their characters, it is a confession of unexpected and extraordinary weakness.

To the true lover of mankind it is harrowing to meet the crest-fallen countenances and listen to the ingenuous explanations of that section of our common humanity known as the members of the Democratic party over the Vermont election. That event has had much the same effect upon that portion of our fellow citizens as the traditional green water-melon has had on the average small boy of all ages. It has doubled them completely up. The consoling notion has been applied to their souls that because they had for a leader a candidate who had no known principles—and a vice-leader, a candidate who had barrels of money, their ticket would be pushed through with a rush and no questions asked. But the evidence goes to show that the intelligent Green-Mountain voters do not support a person because he is neutral in politics, religion or sex, or because the possession of duceats is his sole qualification for office. Neither is there reason to suppose that the intelligent voters of other Northern States will support candidates for these reasons; so it would not be surprising if not one of the old free states cast a single electoral vote for Hancock and English.

THE STATE FAIR.

The State fair closed on Friday afternoon. The aggregate receipts will not be far from those of last year, which may be a disappointment to some, as it was hoped that the fair would be largely successful, financially, so that the society would be able to apply some of the proceeds to its indebtedness. But there were circumstances which combined to defeat the hopes of the officers of the society, over which they could have no control. The heavy and continued rains of two weeks ago did very much to lessen the financial success of the fair. When the storms blew over and sunshine had taken the place of rain and gloom, farmers found themselves as busy as they ever were in grain harvest. Tobacco needed immediate attention. Hay had to be cared for. Ground for fall sowing must be plowed. These things kept many hundreds away from the State fair. But notwithstanding these unfortunate circumstances, the gate receipts will foot up in the neighborhood of ten thousand dollars, which, when all things are considered, may be regarded very good.

The exhibits at the fair were remarkably fine. At no previous fair was there so much farm machinery displayed. There seemed to be acres of it, and hundreds of machines were constantly in motion, which made this department especially interesting, particularly to the farmers. In the agricultural and horticultural departments the show was indeed a credit to Wisconsin, and the farmers who placed the grain and fruits on exhibition. The stock departments were very good except that of cattle, the show of these falling, we think, somewhat below that of previous years. The fine art hall was well filled with some interesting pieces, but the paintings and engravings were exceedingly moderate both in numbers and merit.

The Society held a meeting on Thursday evening to elect officers for the ensuing year. There was a general desire to re-elect President Pratt, of Racine, who has always taken an unselfish interest in the State agricultural society, and notwithstanding his purpose to retire, was re-elected by a vote of 51 to 17 for Mr. Sat Clark. After his election he was prevailed upon to accept the honor so flatteringly bestowed upon him. There was an unanimously expressed wish on the part of the society that General George E. Bryant should be re-elected secretary, and Mr. Cyrus Miner, treasurer. These officers have been so faithful in the discharge of their respective duties, that there was not even an intimation coming from any source that there should be a change, and consequently they were paid the marked respect of being re-elected by acclamation. The only change made among the officers was the election of Mr. W. H. Morrison, of Elkhorn, a member of the executive board, in place of Mr. W. D. Bacon, of Waukesha.

There is a growing sentiment among the officers of the society that under all the circumstances it would be judicious and politic to hold the State fair for two years at Janesville, and we believe there is no feeling against this proposition coming from the Madison people. They have now had it three successive years, and if it will contribute to the general prosperity of the society to change the location for a year or two, they will not interpose any objection. However, this is a matter for the future consideration of the executive board, and whatever they decide to do in the premises, will be in their judgment for the best interest of the State agricultural society.

MAINE.

The Republicans Jubilant over Their Prospects.

Lewiston, Sept. 10.—There is nothing new in the political outlook. The Republicans have their opponents now on the run, and many deserters are coming over daily to the winning side. The effect of the Vermont election has been marked in an increased enthusiasm on the part of the Republicans and a waver in the Fusion line. There is no doubt that if the remainder of the time of the campaign was longer the Republican majority would be largely increased over what it is now expected to be.

The canvass of the Second District shows that Mr. Frye will be re-elected to Congress by nearly 3,000 majority. He will run ahead of his ticket by probably several hundred votes, and Mr. Fogg the Fusion candidate, will be scratched by many Democrats.

Kennebec county, which was the banner county of the State last year, will give 2,000 majority for Mr. Lindsay, and he will be re-elected from the Third District by a handsome vote.

It is believed the Republicans will have a larger majority in the Legislature than for many years. They claim that they will have three-fourths of the House and concede only four Senators to the Fusionists. The Republican gains have been evenly distributed throughout the State.

VERMONT.

A Splendid Republican Victory in Vermont.

New York, Sept. 10.—The Tribune declares the Vermont Republican majority over the Democrats is 23,500 and over all 25,000. It shows that the Republicans cast a larger vote Tuesday than at any election in the past ten years by something like 10 per cent. The highest vote hitherto since 1828 was for Governor in 1876, 44,723, while the vote just cast is known to be more than 47,000. The Republicans cast 7,000 more votes than they cast for Grant.

PRESIDENT HAYES.

The Presidential Party Seeing the Signs on the Pacific Coast.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—President Hayes left this city at 9:20 for Petaluma on the steamer San Rafael, accompanied by General Sherman, Secretary Ramsey, and his son. The ladies of the party were so much fatigued they could not attend. Governor Perkins, and General McComb were in the party. On reaching the steamer the President was greeted by O. G. Wickershaw, E. S. Lippitt, and A. P. Overton, of Petaluma, and escorted on board.

At San Quentin the Directors' car of the North Pacific Coast Railroad was boarded. As the train moved off the President stood on the rear platform and waved his hat to the enthusiastic assemblage, which cheered vociferously. The party was transferred at the junction to a special train of the San Francisco and North Pacific Railroad. Knots of San Rafael people cheered the President and General Sherman as they left the station. The train proceeded without stopping to Petaluma. The reception there is under the auspices of the Directors of the Marin and Sonoma District Agricultural Fair.

VIRGINIA.

The War Between the Democratic Factions in Old Virginia.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The Democrats having failed to induce the Virginia Readjusters to compromise, have taken to boasting that they did not want anything of the South any way. General Fitzhugh Lee was here to-day and says there will not be any compromise between the Regular and Readjuster factions in Virginia. He said: "We (meaning the regulars) are thoroughly organized and will carry the State for Hancock. We are gaining strength every day. There need not be any fear of the loss of the State to Hancock." General Lee said he had been informed that General Mahon was willing to compromise, but the regulars do not need to make concessions in order to carry the State. The General intimates that the proposition of Chairman Kerner of the regular committee to meet the Readjusters in conference did not represent the sentiment of the regular Democrats of Virginia. It seems strange that Democrats should spend weeks in constant efforts to secure what they don't need, and, among other things, bring Wade Hampton away from home to appeal in the name of Lee and Jackson for harmony.

The Republicans of Virginia are making a vigorous campaign, and are in a very hopeful mood in view of the two very hopeful votes that are in the field, and the utter failure so far by the Democrats to make a compromise with the Readjusters. A big meeting is to be held at Fairfax Court house on the 18th inst., at which Commissioner Rains, Fred Douglas, and Mr. Langston, the Minister to Haiti, are to speak. A grand rally is promised.

WAR RECORDS.

A Circular from Colonel Robert N. Scott.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Colonel Robert N. Scott, who has charge of the work of preparing the official records of the war, has issued the following circular in regard to the work:

"The first series will embrace the formal reports, both Union and Confederate, of military operations, with the correspondence, orders, and relations relating especially thereto, and will be accompanied by an atlas. In this series the events will be arranged according to the campaigns and several theaters of operations (in chronological order), and the Union reports of any event will be immediately followed by the Confederate accounts. The correspondence, etc., not embraced in the 'reports,' will follow (first Union and next Confederate) in chronological order. This will be the series most desired by the public, and according to my present estimate it will embrace about eighty volumes, averaging 300 pages each. The second series will contain the correspondence, orders, replies and returns, Union and Confederate relating to the war, and (so far as the military authorities were concerned) to State or political prisoners. This series will probably embrace four octavo volumes. The third series will contain the correspondence, orders, reports, and returns of the Union authorities, embracing their correspondence with the Confederate officials, and not relating specially to the subject of the first and second series. This will embrace about eight volumes. The fourth series will contain the correspondence, etc., of the Confederate authorities not embodied in the preceding series, and will embrace about four volumes."

BELTZHOVER.

He Writes a Letter that Harms Somebody.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 10.—Mr. Beltzhoover, Democratic Congressman from this State, is in hot water. Even the members of his own party believe he wrote the letter reflecting on the ex-Confederate General who is at the head of the Senate Committee on Pensions. The Hon. Thomas M. Bayne, of the Allegheny City District, said to-day that Beltzhoover simply told the truth. He added that in a number of cases of which he had personal knowledge adverse reports were made by the Senate Committee after the Pension bill had passed the House. "There was, for instance," said he "the case of William Bryant, of the Black Diamond Steel Works. The bill granting him a pension passed the House unanimously, and was reported adversely by the Senate Committee. The evidence and the report of the House Committee were so strong that Representative Dannel, of Minnesota, made a special appeal to members of the House who were opposed to the bill, and it had its effect in securing the passage of the bill without a single dissenting vote. There never was a case attested by more powerful evidence. His claim was supported by ten witnesses, among them James Park, Jr., and reputable surgeons. I might cite other cases but this will serve as an illustration. I know that Beltzhoover had cases on the House calendar, and he must have given them attention in order to get them through the House Committee, and that he failed in the Senate is not unlikely, judging from experiences of such cases as that of Bryant."

"Do you think Beltzhoover would write the letter attributed?" "I have no doubt that he would write just such a letter, as he is naturally and impulsively an honest man," was the reply of the Allegheny Congressman.

Leading Democrats of this city believe Beltzhoover for writing such a letter, saying that it will undoubtedly hurt the party in this State. The affair is very likely to cause some flopping, in which Garfield will not be the sufferer.

THE NORTHERN FAIR.

OSHKOSH, Sept. 10.—The preparations being made for the Northern State Exposition, which commences here on the 10th, are on a scale which eclipses any former efforts, and never before in the history of the society has the outlook been so favorable for a successful exhibition. The grounds and exposition buildings are in the best condition possible. Entries are being made from all parts of the country, embracing already some of the best blooded stock in Ohio and Illinois. Secretary Torrey and half a dozen clerks are as busy as bees getting things in readiness, and some first class races will be among the leading features of the fair, while the chorist races will be a novel and interesting part of the programme. The entries for the latter races being for first class horses. The exhibition will commence Tuesday morning and continue through the week. Excursion trains will be run on the Chicago & Northwestern, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, Wisconsin Central and Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western Railways, from Sheboygan and Watertown and Horicon and Stevens Point and Clintonville, at reduced rates.

MINNEAPOLIS.

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 10.—Thirty-thousand people witnessed the races at the grounds of the Agricultural and Mechanical Association in this city to-day. The 2:24 class had five starters. The weather was cloudy and windy. The second heat was trotted in the rain. The entries were: William H. Greyhound, Convey, Frank Fiske, and Business. The race was won by Convey in three straight heats; William H. second, Business third. Time—2:27, 2:23½, 2:22½. For the 2:40 class Troubadour, Myrtle, Sheldon, Highland Soul, Hattie B., and George K. were entered. The race was won by Myrtle, George K. taking first and third and Troubadour the fourth heat. Time—2:23½, 2:25½, 2:31½, 2:31.

GENERAL GARFIELD.

His Entertaining Talk to the People at the Northern Ohio Fair.

CLEVELAND, September 9.—There was an immense attendance, the largest for years at the Northern Ohio fair to-day. The weather was delightful. Among the guests of the association were General Garfield and ex-Governor Bishop. Shortly after dinner speeches were made by General Garfield, Bishop and others. General Garfield said:

MR. PRESIDENT AND GENTLEMEN: While Governor Bishop was speaking of the exhibition of thrift and prosperity exhibited on these grounds, I was thinking of the farm of my father in the old country which are silently but powerfully affecting the two classes of our own population. All who thoughtfully considered the reports of the national census during the last thirty years have observed the great growth of our cities, and the comparatively small amount of population in our agricultural districts. A great many of the older agricultural counties have actually decreased in population. The tendency of civilization is toward the city and away from the country. Let me ask you to reflect whether this is a good feature of the problem. A careful study of the men who have won distinction in every field of activity, public and private, professional and commercial, will show that a large majority of them were born and bred in the country. Examine the roster of all our professions, civil and military, and you will find that many have achieved distinction in all the fresh fields of manufacture and commerce, and you will find that a far larger number were country born boys whose early manhood had touched the soil and drawn health and strength and inspiration from the forces of nature which play with freshness and freedom in the green fields of the country. [Applause.] Gentlemen would you willingly see the present tendency continued until the majority of our people are inhabitants of great cities? If this tendency must prevail there is one way to mitigate its evils, and this is by bringing the city and country into closer relation of sympathy. And this brings me to the chief significance of this fair. This great and growing city of the lakes has opened her arms to the country and annually invites the people who will till our fields, dig in our mines and work in the country shops to come among us and bring with them the fruits of the land and the products of their skill. In return you show them the accumulation of city industry and culture. This interchange is beneficial to both, and let me add especially advantageous to the residents of the city. I am sure that many in leaders of the commerce and trade of Cleveland who were reared in the country are refreshed and invigorated by the reminder of their youth which this fair gives them. They remember "the rock from which they were hewn," the soil on which they grew and are keener and stronger for the remembrance in this fair. The city and the country shake hands in renewed friendship and recognize anew their dependence upon each other. I see at this table, lawyers, bankers, and merchants whose eyes brighten at the remembrance of their country homes. One of the foremost lawyers and jurists of this State, an honored citizen of your city, will not forget his pioneer life in the woods of the far country. I am sure that Judge Ranney does not regret the hardships and inspirations which country life gave to his boyhood.

Physicians Recommend It.—Your Thomas' Electric Oil commands a large and increasing sale, which it richly merits. EVERY YEAR.

BY ALBERT PIKE.

The singing lark's loss of brightness Every year.
And the snow a flatter whiteness Every year.
Nor do summer flowers quicken. Every year.
Nor autumn fruits thicken. Every year.
As they once did, for they sicken Every year.

It is growing darker, colder, Every year.
As the heart and soul grow older Every year.

I care no more for dancing, Every year.
Or for eyes with passion glancing. Every year.
Love is less and less entrancing Every year.

Of the loves and sorrows blended Every year.
Of the charms of friendship ended Every year.

Of the ties that still might bind me, Every year.
Until Time of Death might bind me, Every year.
My immortal friends remind me Every year.

Ah! how sad to look before us Every year.
While the cloud grows darker o'er us Every year.
When the blossoms all are faded, Every year.
That to bloom we might have aided And immortal garlands braided Every year.

To the past go more dead friends Every year.
As the leaves vacant places Every year.
Everywhere we dead eyes meet us, Every year.
In the coming dusk they greet us, Every year.
And to come to them entreat us Every year.

"You are growing old," they tell us Every year.
"You are more alone," they tell us Every year.

"You have no new affection, Every year.
You have only recollection, Every year.
Deeper sorrow and deeper Every year."

Yes! the shores of life are shifting Every year.
And we are seaward drifting Every year.
Old places changing, fret us, Every year.
The living more forget us, Every year.
There are fewer to regret us Every year.

But the true life draws nigher, Every year.
And its morning star climbs higher Every year.
Earth's shadows grow slighter, Every year.
And the heavenly lights brighter Every year.

BRIEFLETS.

—Minstrelsy night. —These cool nights give the flies a great stiff.

—Get your small change ready for church, and your change of clothes too.

—The next competitive drill of the Janesville Guards will be on Thursday evening next.

—One desk and chair in the High School is draped in black. It bespeaks the fact that though George Ripley has gone hence, still he is not forgotten.

—The Band of the New Orleans minstrels enlivened the streets to-day, and gave some stirring music as an announcement of to-night's entertainment at the Opera house.

—The bids for carrying the mail between the depot and postoffice are all in, and were to-day forwarded to Washington, where they are to be opened. They numbered ten.

—One solitary drunk broke the monotony of the police court to-day. The victim was found sleeping by Fredendall's store last night, and was given three days' rest in jail.

—The old building occupied by Richardson & Bro., and now resting temporarily in River street, is to be set rolling, Monday next, Mrs. Addy having purchased it. She will plant it on Franklin street, near her present location.

—The trial of Mrs. Mack will commence Monday afternoon at Jefferson. There is the promise of some new evidence on both sides, but much of the testimony will probably be about the same as that brought out on the trial here, and with which the public are already quite conversant.

—To-night the New Orleans minstrels open the season at the Opera house. The members of the company are said to have been chosen from among the best to be had anywhere, and coming together here, have been rehearsing and making ready for a week past, and to-night the public will have a chance to see and hear them. There is the promise of much fun; and as the company will appear here only for one night, it will be the only chance to hear them, as they start out on their route at once.

—Prof. Titcomb, Mrs. St. John and other well known prominent in musical circles are planning to have the Bells of Conneville presented here early in the winter. It is a comic opera which is so full of charming passages that it will doubtless touch the popular heart, and it will be gladly welcomed. Dr. Barnes, of Chicago, and Prof. Titcomb's brother at Harvard, will probably lend their help to this musical enterprise, and there will be a chorus of about thirty voices. This is what is being planned out, and it is hoped that successful execution will follow.

—There has been an interesting case before Justice Brooks, it being that of Connors vs. Wallin, in which the plaintiff complained of the defendant for negligence in leaving a team standing unhitched, said team running away, and causing damage to Connors' delivery wagon, which was standing at the time in front of his grocery store while the driver went in for a few minutes. Justice Brooks decided in favor of the defendant, holding that as neither Connors' horse nor Wallin's team were hitched, they were either both negligent or else neither was negligent.

THE WEATHER.

REPORTED BY PRENTICE & EVENSON, DRUGGISTS. The thermometer at 6 o'clock last evening stood at 69 degrees above; at 1 o'clock a. m. to-day at 52 degrees above; at 7 o'clock a. m. at 35 degrees above, and at 1 o'clock p. m. at 72 degrees above Clear.

The indications to-day are, for the upper lake region, falling, followed by stationary, or rising barometer, warmer south to west winds, clear or partly cloudy weather.

CAPTURED BY DRAKE

Early in August, George Thorburn, of the town of Janesville, had a harness stolen valued at $35, and suspicion falling upon two young men, who had worked on farms thereabouts, warrants were issued for their arrest, their names being Ernest Baile and Henry Peterson. The twins hurried away from this part of the country, and were flattering themselves on having got beyond the reach of the officers, but they were lately heard from near Oconomowoc, and Constable Drake hurrying thither captured them, and last night brought them to this city, and looked them up in jail to await examination on the charge of larceny.

RALLY AT JOHNS-TOWN.

Last evening there was an enthusiastic Republican rally at the church in Johnstown Center, at which Hon. A. M. Carter was chosen Chairman. A. H. Baxter, Esq., was the first speaker, and showed up strongly what the Republican party had done for the country, establishing a sound currency, resumption, and causing a revival of business activity and prosperity. Hon. James Sutherland then gave a stirring address in which he discussed the important query "Are we a nation?" His speech was a good one, and well received. The audience was large, and the feeling enthusiastic and good natured.

FASHION NOTES.

Traveling suits of gray cheviot are in vogue.

The style of dress consisting of a dress and a blouse is quite the fashion again after being given up for some time. This style admits of a number of pretty arrangements, especially for light fabrics.

A pretty wrap for early autumn is called the directoire mantle, gathered about the neck and shoulders, very long, and decidedly it is a somewhat unusual made of light colored Indian Cashmere, trimmed with yellow meeklin lace, and with amber, gold and gray beads.

Dressing gowns are made half-fitting, and are longer or shorter, according to taste. The simplest are of cambric, with laced fronts, finished with ruffles of the material, the of muslin or white, trimmed with lace and fine embroidery, and with knots of narrow ribbon mixed in with full jabots of lace.

A walking costume that will be much in favor for the autumn is made of soft cloth, with short skirt, plaid or check pattern, and a short redingote, resembling a man's cut-a-way coat, of the same material. The opening formed by the revers is filled with a chemise of very fine linen, plaited and closed with three gold buttons.

The neckerchiefs for outdoor wear to succeed those of India mul and other summer fabrics will be of plain or daintily flowered satin sublime, with a deep border of Persian or Japanese designs. These are drawn down and tied in a sailor's double knot, and the pointed ends are tucked away in a space between the borders and the corsage.

Small turbans of fancy feathers are shown in exquisite colorings for autumn wear. Various kinds of feathers are used for these turbans, and they are completed by two wings at the back, that touch without lapping. Rich breasts and wings will be worn on the sides of this kind, and lovely pompons and tassels of fancy feathers are to be used. Full hats will be nearly all trimmed with bright colors, red predominating.

Woollen goods, with a border for trimming worn along the salvage, is a novelty imported for autumn dresses. These borders are three to five inches wide, and may be of the same color as the body of the goods, or in contrast, and are shown in Madras stripes, and in rich Gobelin tapestry designs, as well as simpler brocade patterns. The shades represented in such goods are of purple, bronze, green, and various blues.

Autumn and winter dresses will be magnificent in embroidery, and fashionable ladies will scintillate from head to foot with a perfect armor of jet and colored beads. All over France embroiderers are bent over their frames working in silk, velvet and wool, and embellishing their works with jets and beads. Each part of the costumes are embroidered with special design composed to suit its form as a whole. Plastrons, tabliers, reverse-corsages, bodices, carriage wraps and opera cloaks will be covered with the style and cost of trimming.

With black dresses made with round waisted bodices, black surah sashes are used and finished with a jet ball; sometimes the black sash is lined with red surah; there are also sashes of surah that are blue on one side and red on the other. These surah sashes are so soft that they may be tied around the waist without adding to the bulk; they are fastened by a knot on the left side, from which the ends hang only as far as the knee; very long sashes are not stylish. Sometimes a plain belt is covered with surah, and two long ends of double surah, finished with spikes or balls, hang straight down the back; this gives a flush to the round waist, and takes away the plain look at the top of the skirt. There are also overskirts; loops with these sashes do over their broad Oriental style quite as much as would too great length.

A ROCKFORD ROMANCE.

Secret Marriage of a Banker's Son and the Daughter of a Commercial Traveler—The Bride Detained from Her Husband by Her Parents.

Rockford, Sept. 10.—Rockford has been shaken with a sensation which has been quietly whispered on the streets for the past week, and which, yesterday, was brought to public notice and the story put in everybody's mouth by the actions of parties directly interested. Neither family had taken pains to obtain concealment, but has openly conversed upon the matter, each airing their own versions. Will Lane, son of Dr. R. P. Lane, president of the Second National bank, has for the past year been keeping company with Miss Maud Beeman, daughter of a traveling man, whose family make Rockford their home. The young lady and her parents were to all appearances perfectly satisfied. The engagement was announced, and it was expected that the date would be revealed shortly. On Thursday of last week the young pair quietly hid themselves to Detroit and were secretly married. On their return to Rockford they went to their respective homes, and after several days announced the fact of the marriage. The statement did not startle the friends of either party, considering it as a bit of erratic romance which young people are wont to delight in. The mother of the bride simply asked that they be married in Rockford and after the manner of the Episcopal church, to which both families belonged, in order that they might be "gossiped" tongues might be silenced. This was agreed to, and Wednesday noon was set for the ceremony. Young Lane procured his license and went to the home of his bride, when it was found that the doors were locked and the windows fastened. To his repeated knocks the father and mother responded that there was no admittance for him, and ordered him away. He alleged that the parents of Miss Beeman had interviewed Dr. Lane repeatedly, and had persistently pressed upon that gentleman their demand that a settlement be made upon their daughter in the event of their union. That gentleman, however, it is said, informed them that he did not do business in that manner; he had no objection to the match, he thought their daughter was a charming and estimable young lady, but would make no settlement upon her, or any promises as to the future, or bind himself to support the two. The last interview occurred Wednesday morning, just before the time set for the second marriage, and, upon finding the doctor still firm, the parents returned home, and denied admission to the young man when he appeared. They then, it is claimed, revealed the report that the Beloit marriage was rather forced upon the girl, young Lane taking advantage of her weakness. They also claim now that the girl is of weak mind and unable to care for herself, frequently acting strangely and oddly, and that she needs their constant care.

Last night Marshal Hamill was sent for by Mr. Beeman, and remained in their house all night, in order to protect it and save their daughter from being seized and carried away by violence. The young girl is almost beside herself with grief, and cried and called out during the night, begging her husband to come and take her away. The young couple remained outside of the house all Wednesday night, watching, lest she be spirited away on the midnight train. The matter has now quieted down considerably, and young and young Lane has consented to abide the time when he can take his bride away, both of them being of age.

Mr. R. Kennetts, Canal Street, N. Y., writes: I have been a sufferer for years from Dyspepsia, and an affection of the Kidneys, have tried numerous remedies but all to no purpose, until I tried your Spring Blossom, now both Dyspepsia and Kidney difficulties have vanished and I enjoy life better than for many years.
